MUSIC DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

This season we celebrate Canada's most revered composer and feature music by outstanding foreign composers, pieces of importance from the 1920s, previous Esprit commissions and, as always, newly commissioned works.

We'll pay tribute to Murray Schafer in our performance of his Adieu Robert Schumann, an evocative monodrama with acclaimed mezzo-soprano Krisztina Szabó singing the part of Schumann's wife Clara. Flutist Robert Aitken performs Murray's flute concerto (one of the finest ever) with Esprit for the fifth time. Scorpius, commissioned by Esprit and performed by us many times, will launch the season with great vibrancy.

In Switch, solo percussionist Ryan Scott helps us satisfy the desire of many audience members, enthralled with Andrew Norman's Play last season, to hear yet another mind-blowing piece from this young American star.

George Crumb, known for exquisite instrumental colours in his chamber music, is less well-known for his orchestral works thus making our performance of A Haunted Landscape a rare listening opportunity. Similarly, Conlon Nancarrow's gem for small orchestra shows an alternate aspect of a composer most famous for his complex player piano works. The recent works by Leroux, Dalbavie, Di Castri, and Adès are already important in today's musical spectrum.

Esprit's commitment to commissioning and premiering new works comes into full force on our February concert.

Esprit aims to provide you with exciting, satisfying and meaningful concert experiences. Welcome to Esprit's 34th season in the exploration and evolution of emotionally, intellectually and spiritually stimulating musical expression.

Sincerely,

The sheer excitement of one of the greatest flute concertos ever, the powerful drama of texts from Clara Schumann's diaries blended with fragments of Robert's music to portray his progressive descent into madness during his last years, and the mischievous humour of Scorpius ("Am I trying to sting someone with 'my' Scorpius? I'll let the listener decide"), reveal an impressive array of Schafer's diverse compositional skills. The new mythologies, fantasy characters, and mysterious realms of computer games influence the witty, energetic juxtapositions of Norman's Switch.

“M” represents the phonetic sense of “love” in the French language, and in Leroux’s work, a concerto grosso, “m” represents the little orchestra and “M” the big orchestra. Alba reflects dawn in winter on the prairies of Northern Alberta, calling up “the majestic beauty in this quilted silence and stunning flatness”. Dalbavie’s cello concerto demands a wide range of virtuosic playing and confirms this composer’s musical genius. Crumb’s work creates almost ritualistic sonic impressions expressing that certain places on Earth “are imbued with an aura of mystery” and of ancient histories that still penetrate contemporary consciousness.

Adventure and discovery come with premiering new works. Along with the new pieces by Llugdar, Scime, and Rea, Evangelista's Accelerando, being premiered by the Montreal Symphony Orchestra in November 2016, is also new. Nancarrow, famous for complex player piano pieces not playable by humans, is represented by an orchestral gem that can be performed by Esprit's excellent musicians. Llugdar, composing as though she is inside sound, aims at expression through complex textures, many contrasts and extremes in the same piece. Scime's piece is a new panel of a triptyque for Esprit.

The Iron Foundry and Pacific 231 are imaginative musical depictions of forces at the height of the industrial revolution that suggest both organic and mechanical extensions of human feelings. The sonic materials of Adès' concerto are sheets of sound in differing orbits, overlapping, sometimes clashing circular forms, and playful, easeful cycles in harmony at different rates. Adams' Short Ride elevates the level of excitement and Harman pushes things into overdrive.
